

Paul Helliwell rites tomorrow

Services for Paul Helliwell, 62, a Miami lawyer instrumental in the purchase of the Disney World site in Central Florida, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Lithgow Coral Way Funeral Home.

Mr. Helliwell died Friday from a collapsed lung. He suffered from emphysema, and lost consciousness in his Coral Gables home, police said. Rescuers' efforts were in vain.

Mr. Helliwell was a graduate of the University of Florida law school and had numerous business connections. He was board chairman of banks in Perrine and Cutler Ridge, and was active in the insurance industry.

Ten years ago, Mr. Helliwell acquired much of the real estate southwest of Orlando where Walt Disney wanted to build an amusement park. Disney interests refrained from making the purchases openly for fear that disclosure would boost prices.

Mr. Helliwell was the United States counsel for the Castle Bank and Trust Company Ltd. of the Bahamas, a bank being investigated by a federal grand jury involving alleged tax havens for American corporations and individuals.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie, and a daughter, Anne.

James Allen was a student at Carol City Junior High School and a member of Boy Scout troop 529. Services will be at Lowe Hanks Palm Springs, 4850 Palm Ave.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen Brown; sisters Linda and Shelli, and brothers Richard, Bradley and Joseph.

About 160 passengers from the five-car train were cared for in the Downingtown Senior High School gymnasium.
The Amtrak spokesman said 95 of those taken to the gymnasium were bused to Harrisburg to continue their trip to Chicago, four were placed in a local motel, and the rest returned to their homes here.

Ford recalls triumphs, failures in presidency

Jimmy Carter will soon find that promises he made in the heat of the presidential campaign are going to be hard to keep once he enters the Oval Office.

Recalling Aug. 9, 1974, when he took over the presidency from Richard Nixon, Ford said, "People were angry with one another, there was a divisiveness among our people, there was distrust of people for their government and Washington, as an institution, I think, was in great disrepute."

"So the last two and a half years, I feel, have changed the whole atmosphere very significantly."

The President also again defended his decision to pardon Nixon while admitting that the action had an "adverse impact" on his chances in the election.

"I feared the pardon," he explained, "because in the first month that I was President, we had horrendous problems in South-East Asia and Vietnam. And all the time in that first month there was controversy day after day."

"I was spending at least 35 percent of my time in the White House in the last few months of the year in Vietnam and the problems of the economy and that is the only reason that I really made the decision."

Aside from the pardon, Ford said the most difficult decision that confronted him during his administration was ordering the operation to rescue American merchant seamen in the Mayaguez incident and that one of the most difficult tasks was to gain Israeli and Egyptian consent to the Sinai II agreement.

Ford characterized some statements made by Carter during the presidential campaign as "purely political comments" whose meaning was "significantly different" in the reality of being in the White House.

"I think he is going to find that you can't turn a switch and automatically increase employment and decrease unemployment," he said, "the waving of a magic wand creates a deficit even over a period of time," the outgoing President said.

He cited the Middle East, southern Africa, and conclusion of the U.S. — Soviet arms strategic arms — with the Soviet Union.
